A sneak peak at what's in store for alumni when Manor celebrates its 50th Anniversary.

Manor's New Tag-Line "Premieres"

In case you haven't noticed, Manor has a new tag-line: America's Premier Two-year Catholic College. A bold statement indeed, and one that is certain to draw some attention.

"We needed a tag-line out there that makes a definite statement, with no question to its meaning," says Steve Greenbaum, who heads Manor's Marketing Committee. "We felt that Manor's former tag-line 'Advancing a Unique Tradition,' though it carried a certain significance, was vague and needed to be revised."

So last summer, the Committee conducted a comparison using Peterson's Guide to Two-Year Colleges, between Manor and the top ten other two-year Catholic colleges in the country. The Committee examined the following criteria: enrollment, student/teacher ratio, number of majors and faculty members, percentage of faculty members with a Ph.D., number of sports programs, amount of available housing, number of student clubs, tuition and dorm costs, number of admission requirements, percentage of non-traditional students and transfer/employment rates. The study showed Manor in the top three in 11 categories, nearly twice as often as the next best two-year Catholic College in the country. (See list on right.)

And the study shows...

Manor Junior College was FIRST in three categories:

- Student/teacher ratio
- Number of faculty
- Admission requirement standards

Manor Junior College was SECOND in four categories:

- Number of majors offered
- Number of full-time students
- Percentage of full-time students
- Balance of transfer v. degree students

Manor Junior College was THIRD in four categories:

- Number of sports programs
- Overall enrollment
- Dorm costs (third lowest)
- Percentage of faculty with Ph.D's.

(Based on statistics from Peterson's Guide to Two-Year Colleges.)

"We believe the new tag-line positions the college nationally, enabling us to take our rightful place as an academically superior educational institution," says Greenbaum. "It's a claim we can make legitimately and proudly."

Department restructured to accommodate Adult Learners

Manor has restructured its Continuing Education office to offer the adult learner two exciting options for continuing education and career advancement. Now, two separate departments -- the Part-Time Admissions department and the Professional Development department -- each will focus on a specific area concerning the adult learner.

Part-Time Admissions, headed by Sandy Fleming, handles individuals who seek to return to school on a part-time basis (11 credits or less) while Professional Development focuses on corporate training, on-site courses and personal enrichment seminars.

"There's a definite need for professional training, with businesses looking for timely resources to train their staff," says Chris Whaumbush, who heads the Professional Development Department. "This change allows us to reach more of the business community with on and off-site training."

Do you have expertise in a particular area that you would like to pass along?

If you do, consider teaching a workshop at Manor.

Courses can range anywhere from 1 night to 1-3 nights a week.

Call 215-885-2360 ext. 229 for more information.

Recent courses include: Debt Free Living, Financial Planning, Sign Language and a variety of introductory and advanced computer classes. "So far, the response has been excellent and classes have filled quickly," says Whaumbush.

All courses are taught by certified instructors and vary in length. For more information and the latest brochure call 215-884-2218.

Top 10 Manor's Alumni

Last winter, the Alumni Association Board began the arduous task of choosing Manor's top ten alumni. With over 55 nominations from faculty, staff and division leaders, the Association feels confident that the following individuals represent the best of Manor, and offers a cross-section of Manor's most successful alumni. Beginning with this issue of Alumni News, the Alumni Association plans to honor ten alumni annually. Congratulations to the winners and to everyone who was nominated. It's because of individuals like you that Manor Junior College has become America's Premier Two-year Catholic College.

-- Mary Lou Mongiven Delizia '66, Alumni Association Board President

Sally Assheton Dodd '61 (Liberal Arts)

What have you been up to since graduating from Manor?
I teach third graders at Julian Curtiss Elementary School in Connecticut.

Describe your Manor experience.
I enjoyed Manor. It was so small and intimate. I met many special people there - like Sr. Olga.

What do you remember most about Manor?
I remember walking to the chapel on cold winter days. And the food - like perogi's.

Notables: Sally served as Class President at Manor and is active in the Connecticut public school system.

Sister Mary Cecilia Jurasinski, OSBM '56 (Elementary Education)

What have you been up to since graduating from Manor?
I received a B.A. from Immaculata College and taught in public schools in Reading before entering the order of Sisters of St. Basil the Great in 1960.

Describe your Manor experience.
I found Manor very affirming. Everyone was so helpful and nice. I was able to meet students from different countries like Ukraine, and made many close friends that I still have today.

What do you remember most about Manor?
The closeness of the dorm students, and how impressed I was with the Sisters -- which encouraged me to think about joining them.

Notables: Sister Cecilia began her third term as President of Manor in July and has received many awards, including Outstanding Educator of America (1974-75) and Outstanding Graduate Alumni from Villanova in 1986. Her hobbies include researching Byzantine Liturgical and Spirituality traditions.

Campus Bits

Ya'all come back now, ya' hear?

"Alumni Round-ups" bring graduates back to campus

Manor held the first in what will be a series of "Alumni Round-ups" last November, whereby graduates are invited back to the College to tour the campus, get reacquainted with faculty members and dine with the College President and the Development & Alumni Relations Director. Additional "Round-ups" will be scheduled for this fall. If you are interested in returning to Manor for a visit, call Frank DeMarchi at (215) 885-2360, ext. 214.

"Life is the adventure..."

Bard Speaks to Graduates

With all the pageantry that accompanies graduation, Manor officially welcomed 122 graduates as its newest alumni at Commencement Exercises on May 15. State Representative Ellen Bard, who serves on Manor's Council of President's Associates, gave a stirring commencement speech. Bard told the graduates that they are never too old or too knowledgeable to learn from others and encouraged them to look to the future with excitement and optimism.

"You have so much to offer the world, so much to share with others. Your future, your life, is the adventure," Bard said.

Also at commencement, Business Division Chair, Joanna Seemiller, and Director of Early Childhood Education/ Psychology, Elaine Ratner, were honored with the Teaching Excellence Award for their contributions and years of service to the Manor community.

Learning from those who came before...

"Alumni Conversations" continue

Allied Health/Science transfer students at Manor have a lot to consider as they enter their sophomore year: what schools to consider for a particular major; what will the transfer/admission requirements be; of what I'm learning this year, what will be most important?

To help answer these questions, Division Chair Jim Purcell hosted the second "Alumni Conversations" program, bringing graduates back to campus to field questions from current students.

Spring Gala Benefits Vet. Tech. Program

Manor's annual rite to spring arrived on April 11 as the College held its 8th Annual Springtime Gala at Spring Mill Manor in Ivyland. Members of the Board of Trustees, CPA, alumni, faculty, staff and friends of the College enjoyed gourmet food, live music and exciting live and silent auctions that offered weekend getaway, museum, theatre and dinner packages. Among the 150 attendees were Congressman Jon Fox, who auctioned off his own donation: a personal guided tour of Washington, D.C. This year's Gala raised over $20,000 for Manor's Veterinary Technology Program. Plans are already underway for next year's Gala, scheduled for Friday, April 24, 1998. Contact Gala Coordinator Marie McNamara at 884-2215 to make reservations.

Congressman Jon Fox takes bids on his own auction donation -- a personal guided tour of Washington, D.C. and lunch -- while Auctioneer Barry Slosberg (left) looks on.

Manor honored Pat McManus, one of the first Vet. Tech. program directors, credited with bringing the program its first accreditation.

Manor Holds 3rd Annual Golf Outing

Over 75 members from the Manor community turned out to participate in the Manor Junior College/Prime Bank Golf Outing at Northampton Country Club on May 13. The outing was played scramble style, with awards given for the best foursome, best runner-up foursome, closest to the hole and longest drive. A hole-in-one contest provided participants the opportunity to win a new 1997 car donated by Jenkintown Pontiac, Buick, GMC. The prizes were awarded during a buffet dinner and awards ceremony held afterwards.

Council of President's Associates member Bob Maher participates in the hole-in-one contest.

Spotlight on William Crowley, athletic director:

Making a Difference Through Education

Athletic Director William Crowley (standing, left) -- in his other role as men's soccer coach -- addresses the team during a break in play.

For Athletic Director Bill Crowley, it's really quite simple - education comes first.

"I tell kids all the time, sports is a short lived fantasy, they must have an education to fall back on," Crowley said.

Crowley, 47, speaks from experience. He was an All-American soccer player at Temple before playing four years professionally with the Philadelphia Spartans and Delaware Wings. When bad knees forced him to retire, Crowley knew his degree in education would help him find a job. He eventually landed a counseling position with Self-Help, Inc., a drug addiction center in the Northeast, where he still works today as the Executive Associate Director.

When Crowley joined Manor in 1990, only women's basketball existed, as the College focused almost exclusively on academics.

"I use sports to keep kids in the classroom and to get them going in the right direction."

"My goal when I arrived was to build a competitive athletics program with emphasis that students attend class, graduate and are competitive on the field," said Crowley.

All indications prove he has succeeded. Today, Manor boasts thriving programs in men's and women's basketball and soccer, as well as women's volleyball, with plans underway for teams in men's cross country and women's softball.

During Crowley's tenure, Manor has won three championships, two state titles and one league title. This success is not limited to athletics. The combined G.P.A. of all men's athletic teams is 2.7 and has increased each year since 1994. And this years men's basketball team, which captured the EPCC league title, had a cumulative grade point average of 3.0.

"I use sports to keep kids in the classroom and to get them going in the right direction," says Crowley, who also coaches the men's soccer team. "What I try to get students to realize is that the same qualities that make them successful in athletics - hard work, dedication and a positive attitude - will make them successful in life."

Manor is planning an Alumni Day next spring where former athletes will be invited back to compete against current teams.

For alumni interested in participating, please contact Bill Crowley at 885-2360 ext. 271.

Alumni Social one of many 50th Anniversary events scheduled

An Alumni Social is but one of the events scheduled as part of Manor's 50th Anniversary celebration -- but one in which readers of this magazine should certainly be interested.

Sponsored by the Alumni Association, the Alumni Social is scheduled for Sunday, December 7, 1997, from 1-4 p.m. at the Hollywood Tavern in Hollywood, Pennsylvania -- less than one mile from campus. With a modest $15 fee, the afternoon will feature a buffet, cash bar, door prizes, giveaways and some Manor reminiscences from years past. There will be an open beer and wine bar from 1:30 to 2:30 and the Eagles game will be on three TVs. It'll be a great way to catch up with some old friends, make some new ones and see what your fellow Manor graduates are doing with their lives! It can also be a terrific networking opportunity!

ALL MANOR JUNIOR COLLEGE ALUMNI ARE INVITED! So, if you would like to attend, or need more information, do not hesitate to call your Alumni Hotline at (215) 885-2360, ext. 215.

Please refer to the list at right for a full 50th Anniversary Schedule of Events.

We're asking our alumni to please use the perforated pull-out card inside this magazine to let us know if you'll be attending the Alumni Social or any other 50th Anniversary event. Simply check off the event you plan to attend and mail back the card. And we'll look forward to seeing you this year!
